

Individual Reflection

Alexander Neldefors

13/10 2019

This week I haven't been able to work with the group as much as the other weeks because I have another course (Object Oriented Project) which I have been busy working on. But when I worked in the other course I have learned things I can apply in this course (because I'm also working on an android app in that course). I have learned about Android Room as well as good Domain Driven Design (DDD). I would like to integrate that into the project in this course, I would like to be doing it by showing the team the benefits of Android Room and a good DDD in the next meeting and try to integrate it into the project. I would also like to get finished with our application in the next week. I could contribute to that happening by helping others in my team with problems they may encounter and also taking on more tasks (as I usually finish tasks pretty quickly).